Step 1

PREPARING TO SELL INTERNATIONALLY

The first step to being a successful seller is picking the products you will be selling and choosing what regions you will sell them to. In order to help you decide what products are best suited for international selling, it is best to first understand what products can be sold on eBay and what products can be shipped internationally. Whether you're targeting international customers or trying to decide what regions you will ship your product to, it is crucial to better understand the eBay Global Marketplace. At eBay, we have seen US buyers and sellers increasingly trade with users from countries where English is widely spoken such as the UK, Canada and Australia, Hong Kong & Germany.

- eBay Prohibited Items – eBay has a list of prohibited items that cannot be traded on the site. Be aware of these before you list an item on the site. The list of prohibited items for eBay.ca can be found at: http://pages.ebay.ca/help/sell/item_allowed.html
- Internationally Prohibited Items – in addition to eBay's prohibited items list, each country has a specific list of items that are prohibited from entry. Make sure that your items can be legally sent to the countries you are targeting by going to the Canada Post link below and select "Go to Section H": <http://www.canadapost.ca/tools/pg/manual/d06-e.asp#c003>
-  Hot Tip – items which have a high dollar value relative to their weight are those most likely to be sold internationally. A small sampling of items that fit these criteria include collectables (i.e. – coins and stamps), jewellery, electronics (i.e. – such as PDA's & MP3 players), auto parts and sporting goods.

Step 2

LISTING YOUR ITEMS

Once you have familiarized yourself with eBay's thriving Global Marketplace and you are ready to start selling your products, it's time to list your items. One of the key steps to successful selling is knowing where and how to list your items:

- Selecting Shipping Regions – be sure to make your item available to international buyers. When listing your item, look in the “Ship-to locations” section and select the “Will ship worldwide” radio button; or if you would like to choose specific regions, use the appropriate checkboxes to indicate which regions that you are willing to ship to.
- International Shipping Services – to attract more international buyers, add international shipping services and prices to your listing. By providing rates for domestic, US and overseas shipping up front, your international and cross-border buyers will be more confident in placing a bid.
-  Hot Tip – avoid using colloquialisms or abbreviations as these may not be understood by international buyers to whom English is not their native language.
- Language Differences – if you are targeting a specific audience be aware of the language(s) spoken in that country or region. If there is a need to translate a description, go to the international boards where eBay users have volunteered to provide free translation services.

or

- Utilize a free online translation tool; these tools cover translations across multiple languages.
<http://babelfish.altavista.com/>
http://www.google.com/language_tools
- Setting Expectations – set clear expectations in the item description. Be sure to include an estimate or separate cost for international shipping and be clear about delivery time. You may also want to advise potential buyers to research customs fees prior to placing a bid.

Step 3

PAYMENT

Once you have found international buyers for your products, you will want to get your payment quickly and securely. To help facilitate international transactions, PayPal has been aggressively expanding its global reach and the currencies in which users can transact.

- Currency Conversion – eBay automatically converts the cost of a product to the default currency of the site it is being viewed on. If a Canadian buyer is viewing an item listed on the UK site, they will see the cost in Canadian dollars and UK pounds. If you would like additional information on what your product will cost in local currency please visit the currency converter link:
<http://pages.ebay.ca/services/buyandsell/currencyconverter.html>
- Receiving Payment – not being able to accept the local currency is often cited as an obstacle to selling internationally. PayPal helps sellers accept payments in multiple currencies and withdraw funds in Canadian dollars. Below is a link to the countries in which PayPal is available:

- Hot Tip – accept PayPal and reduce the time spent waiting for payments (e.g. – money orders) by up to 10 days! Register now:

Step 4

SHIPPING

Once you have received your payment it is time to ship the product. Below are the services that have worked best for eBay sellers to facilitate this process.

Choosing a Carrier & Product

- Canada Post Products – Canada Post offers competitive international shipping options. The service options most widely used by eBay sellers are:

Service	Shipping Method	Speed of Delivery	Restrictions
Small Packets - International	Ground & Airmail	Airmail can take up to 10 days to deliver to most countries; ground can take up to 6 weeks	For packages under 2 kg

- United Parcel Service (UPS) Products – UPS is one of the most widely utilized third party carriers in Canada. It is important to note that for international shipments, UPS does not specialize in slower shipments and is therefore better suited for time sensitive shipments. Please go the link below for more information on their service options:

- Additional Third Party Carriers – there are a host of additional carriers such as Federal Express, Purolator Courier, and DHL that service Canada. These carriers may not be widely used by eBay sellers for international shipments due to their higher fees and limited products.
- Brokerage Fees – when using third party providers be mindful of brokerage fees that are incurred when a package is handed off to other shippers if the carrier cannot deliver the package all the way to its final destination.
- Hot Tip – Canada Post offers many options for small business owners to save time through specialized programs. Among the time saving tools is the ability to print labels and order supplies online. To find out more about these and other programs go to the Canada Post site below:
<http://www.canadapost.ca/business/intsol/sb/default-e.asp>

Filling Out Customs Forms: duties and tariffs may be charged on certain items. Customs forms help both Canada and the import country understand the package's contents, value and purpose. These forms are affixed on the outside of the package so that they can be easily examined by customs officials.

- Canada Post Customs Forms – there are two main forms that Canada Post requires for international items— form CN22 & form CP72. Below is a brief description of when each of these forms is applicable.

Service	Shipping Method	CN22 (43-074-076)	CP72
Letter Post (small mail)	Ground & Airmail	Less than $500 value	Value is $500 or more plus CN22
Small Packets	Ground & Airmail	All packages	N/A
International Parcels Air or Surface	Ground & Airmail	N/A	All packages

For more information on filling out each form, follow the link below:

- Hot Tip – Save instantly on your shipping by joining the Venture One™

Preferred Small Business Client program

<http://www.canadapost.ca/business/intsol/sb/ventureone/default-e.asp?source=web>

- UPS Customs Forms – UPS suggests shippers use the following forms and provides online help for completing the forms:
Invoice Information Form
US Certificate of Origin Form
US Shippers Export Declaration
NAFTA Certificate of Origin Form (when shipping within NAFTA countries)
https://wwwapps.ups.com/tradeability/forms?loc=en_CA
- Item Value Declaration – when declaring the value of the item on the customs form, use the auction closing price for your item, not including shipping & handling costs, so that the buyer does not overpay in duties and taxes.
- Hot Tip – Under normal circumstances, you should not qualify the package's contents as a gift. Buyers may ask the seller to declare an item as a gift. It is against the law to misrepresent an item in order to avoid customs fees. As a general rule, do not intentionally misrepresent either the value or the contents of the package in order to circumvent customs duties and/or taxes. Please review our Tax Policy for further information:
<http://pages.ebay.ca/help/policies/seller-tax.html>
- Invoice Inclusion – include an invoice or printout of the closed listing in your package so that there is evidence of how much the buyer paid should customs officials open the package.
- Hot Tip – be sure that your packaging is sturdy, well cushioned and sealed. Shipping internationally can mean more wear and tear on your packages, so make sure your items arrive safely.

Additional Information

Once your volume of international sales starts to increase there are additional services and resources that are available to help with the logistics and defray some of the costs of shipping abroad.

- Payment Processors – these providers facilitate the payment process by offering currency exchange or consignment services. Providers in this category offer international money orders and broker a transaction until each party has received their respective goods or fees.
- Customs Brokers – these providers help shepherd items through customs or provide logistics and consultative services. These providers tend to be more expensive and are typically used by high volume shippers.
- Aggregators and Drop-Off Locations – these providers help small volume shippers allay the hassles involved in logistics and the costs of shipping internationally. They use their expertise to aggregate shipments from smaller shippers to get discounts on shipping and increase reliability and security.
